

Gender Review of National Adaptation Plan (NAP) Documents

As part of its ongoing initiative on gender-responsive NAP processes, the NAP Global Network has undertaken a systematic review of NAP documents posted on the UNFCCC's NAP Central to assess the integration of gender considerations.

The document reviews explored how gender considerations have been addressed in the documents, as well as how women are positioned. It is important to note that most of the documents do not include much detail on the process undertaken to develop the NAP document or on strategies for implementation and M&E. Consequently, a lack of evidence in the document does not necessarily mean that gender hasn't been considered in a particular aspect of the NAP process—it may simply indicate a lack of documentation or that there is additional work to be done to elaborate on particular aspects of the plan.

Below is a summary of the review of Chad's NAP document.

Country	Chad
Document reviewed	First National Climate Change Adaptation Plan (2022)
Gender and/or women referenced?	Yes
Summary of gender references	One of the five objectives of the NAP is to integrate gender considerations into the development and implementation of adaptation measures. The NAP also highlights gender sensitivity as a cross-cutting issue following the guiding principles defined by the convention. It mentions that gender inequalities are very pronounced in Chad and that gendered vulnerabilities need to be considered in adaptation. It also identifies gender and social protection as a priority area of intervention. A few solutions are proposed to integrate gender, such as the development of gender-sensitive tools for the planning and execution of adaptation actions, the development of a disaggregated database or activities to challenge negative social norms.
Gender concepts referenced	Gender equality Gender equity Gender sensitivity Gender responsiveness	Gender mainstreaming Gender differences Gender-based discrimination Other: gender disaggregation
Context for reference to gender	Gender identified as a cross-cutting issue for the plan Gender equality/sensitivity/responsiveness identified as a principle for the plan Gender identified as a priority sector or program area for the NAP Specific adaptation options identified to address gender issues
Positioning of women	As a group that is particularly vulnerable to climate change As beneficiaries of adaptation actions As agents of change
