

Gender Review of National Adaptation Plan (NAP) Documents

As part of its ongoing initiative on gender-responsive NAP processes, the NAP Global Network has undertaken a systematic review of NAP documents posted on the UNFCCC's NAP Central to assess the integration of gender considerations.

The document reviews explored how gender considerations have been addressed in the documents, as well as how women are positioned. It is important to note that most of the documents do not include much detail on the process undertaken to develop the NAP document or on strategies for implementation and M&E. Consequently, a lack of evidence in the document does not necessarily mean that gender hasn't been considered in a particular aspect of the NAP process—it may simply indicate a lack of documentation or that there is additional work to be done to elaborate on particular aspects of the plan.

Below is a summary of the review of Grenada's NAP document.

Country	Grenada
Document reviewed	National Climate Change Adaptation Plan (NAP) for Grenada, Carriacou and Petite Martinique (2017)
Gender and/or women referenced?	Yes
Summary of gender references	Gender aspects are highlighted in some of the plan's Programmes of Action. Analyzing and reporting on progress addressing gender is identified as a priority for monitoring and evaluation. The plan indicates that women's groups participated in its development. It also indicates that women may be particularly vulnerable to climate change and should be targeted for some climate change adaptation actions.
Gender concepts referenced	Gender sensitivity
Context for reference to gender	Gender aspects are identified as part of priority actions for some Programmes of Action.
Positioning of women	As a group that is particularly vulnerable to climate change As stakeholders in adaptation planning processes
